HIS NOVEL VOTE.

Mr. Robert M. Furman, the Democratic candidate for Auditor, is here. He tells of his novel vote at the Chicago convention. He was the only man who voted for Clevelland and Stevenson on the same ballot. He cast two thirds of a vote for Stevenson and one third for Clevelland. COUNTY REORGANIZATION. One of the most important things which the Democrats have to consider in this State is the reorganization of the county and township executive committees and charmen. Not a few of the latter are traitors—Third-party men. It is the case in this county in several of the townships your correspondent is told. The Democrats must also see to it that the new election law is rigidly enforced. Success this year depends upon the Democrats fighting the Republicans and the Third party with all the means at hand.

Narrow Escape of a Train.
[Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.]
Washington, N. C., July d.—The train on the Washington branch of the Coast-Line came very near being wrecked eight indies from Washington on Mooday. The filling at Trouter's Creek treadle being of sand, and the heavy rains and large volume of water that has been pressing against the dam for five days, finally succeeded in penetrating the filling and almost meiting the entire dam, which is over 200 yards long. When the engine crossed the treate and struck the dam the track began to slide and the sand
began to give way. The engineer, Mr.
L. E. Scott, realizing the danser, incrassed the speed of the train, and while the cars were bassing over the rotten fill it
the sand was failing on both sides of the track and a total week resemed ineviable. But the self-possession of the engineer in forcing the rain over the dam in such haste saved expirer. Narrow Escape of a Train.

HUNTING PORPOISES IN ACCOMAC

Creek-Five "Herring" Hogs Caught. Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.] ONANCOCK, July 5.—"The glorious Fourth" was observed here in a rather strange and exing manner. Early in the morning several reons residing here discovered a school of por-ises that had made their way up Onanceck poises that had made their way up Onanceck creek, a broad and deep estuary of the Chesapeake Bay, and were sporting in the water not far from the wharves. The persons who first eaw them got into a small boat and succeeded in driving them up the southern prong of the educary. A seine was stretched from shore to shore, thus cutting off escape. The news soon spread through the town, and persons began to flock to the scene to witness or participate in the sport of capturing the porpoises. They came bringing guns of almost every variety, from an old army musket to a repeating rifle. Others were armed with pistols, spikes, and harpoons. The body of water in which the porpoises had been confined was several hundred yards wide and about one half mile long. The porpoise, which is an anal somewhat like the whale, cannot remain under water very long, but has to come to the surface to breathe. As he comes up to get air and then dives down again he looks as if he were turning a somersault in the water.

EXCITED CROWNS.

EXCITED CROWNS.

The method of attack adopted by the porpoi hunters here yesterday was to shoot at the popoises as they came to the surface. When a was wounded he was pursued by the cager a excited hunters in boats, chased down, and a tured. The crowd of speciators continued to crease throughout the day till between the and four hundred people were witnessing sport. They lined both shores and insmall boats were filled with speciate The ladies were out in full force, and a few children witnessed the exciting spwith indestribable delight. At times sportsmen would become so excitat they would leap from their boats upon porpoises as they passed by them and go do with them far below the surface; others shot random and strack persons on the oppositor instead of the porpoises, though no was seriously hurt. EXCITED CROWDS.

PIVE CAPTURED. The sport continued from 8 o'clock in the morning till 4 or b in the afternoon without interruption, all remaining at the sport without danser. When the sport ended five hage porcess had been captured, only one having made his escape. All of them were full grown, measuring from 300 to 400 pounds each. Those captured belong to a species of the porpoise known among seamen as the "herring hos," so called from the fact that they live largely on that fish. They are very playful, and will frequently run's race with steamors, getting close to the bow and shooting through the water like an arrow through the safe.

This house contains 7 rooms, has a detached kitchen with 2 rooms, city water, cow-flouse, &c., and if occupies a good position on a corner and in a nice neighborhood, and with facilities for street-car travel to every part of the city. The lot on which it stands is very choice and of good to an alley 18 feet wide. past is sufficient assurance of its prospective value. The most approved 4 per cent bonds offer no better security for the investment than does property on Broad street, while the profits to be reasonably expected in a series of years is very large. NO BETTER OPPORTUNITY FOR A SNUG HOME or to pick up a nice INVESTMENT can be found.
